Tigers Seem to Lose Snap When Georgian Is on the Sidelines

The real worth of Ty Cobb to the Detroit team has been illustrated during the past week. The Tigers, in four days, have dropped three games that probably would have been theirs had the Georgian been in play.

In Washington Heilmann lost many chances to bang out hits off soft pitching and he also erred in the field. Cobb, on the other hand, invariably shines in Philly and there is little question but that he would have improved his general average.

To pass over Heilmann's failures: Cobb's presence means much to the Detroit team.

Every report from the east indicates that the Tigers have lost a lot of their fighting spirit since the departure of the Georgian. Not alone does Cobb have an exhilarating effect on the Detroit players, but his playing usually generates the opposition.

The chances are that even Cobb could not have turned a victory to Detroit in Washington Monday. It has been a long time since the Tigers have scored a victory over Walter Johnson, but Cobb would have made the defeat a less overwhelming one and a closer score would have worried the Nationals and would have forced Walter Johnson into harder pitching.

Cobb means more to the Detroit team than does Jackson to the Naps. Opposing clubs do not fear Jackson on the bases; on the other hand, they are always worried for fear the Georgian will start the unexpected.

The unfortunate injury has also prevented the Georgian from putting up a fight for the batting leadership. Jackson has been in a slump since the taking of the eastern trip, while Cobb usually goes at top speed on the road.

Jim Jeffries is taking a deep interest in the work of Johnny Coon and will train the Chicago bantam for his bout with "Kid" Williams.

Gumbert Smith has engaged Bob Armstrong, the colored heavyweight, as sparring partner. Bob will prepare Smith for the latter's bout with Carpenter.

Writing from Australia, Manager Al Lippe says all the American boxers now in that country are cleaning up in the ring and making sales of money.

WILL TRY OUT CUP DEFENDERS

Three Initial Races Next Week Preliminary to Final Tests

New York, May 29.—The Defiance, Resolute and Vanitie, the three yachts built as candidates for the defense of the America's Cup, are to meet for the first time next week. Three races are scheduled for the trial of defenses, the first to be held Tuesday and the others on the succeeding days. The races will be conducted under the auspices of the New York Yacht club, they will be sailed in Long Island Sound, with the start off Great Captain's Island, near Greenwich, Conn.

These initial races will mean much to the owners and managers of the three sloops, though the results will have no decisive bearing on the selection of the defender. The actual trial races, the winner of which will be selected to meet Shamrock IV, in the cup contests, will take place off Newport during the third week of August.

On June 10, 11 and 12 the three candidates will be tried out over the regular cup course off Sandy Hook. The distance will be the same as in the international races.

Of the trio of candidates the Herreshoff yacht Resolute appears to be a favorite among yachting sharp. The majority of the experts have expressed the opinion that the reduced sail area plan which is to be used on the Resolute will give that craft a decided advantage in allowances over the Vanitie and the Defiance. Herreshoff's reputation of turning out winners also counts considerably of a figure when it comes to picking the favorite before the trial races. In designing and building speedy racing yachts the Bristol shipyard has few if any equals. This fact alone is bound to influence the betting on the coming races.

Other Yachts Speedy. But no races in won until the winner crosses the finish line, so the owners and designers of the Vanitie and ## the Defiance may be evaded if they figure the chances of their craft to be as good as those of the Resolute.

The Vanitie is known as the Cochran yacht. Its owner is Alexander Smith Cochran, a yachting enthusiast of Yonkers, N. Y. The yacht was designed by William Gardner and built by the George Lawley and Sons company at Neponset, Mass.

George Owen, the designer of the Defiance, has been backed by what is known as the tri-city syndicate, composed of New York, Philadelphia and Boston yachtsmen. The Defiance was built by the Bath Iron Works, Bath, Me. Her distinguishing feature is a 148-foot mast, which is said to be the tallest stick ever placed on a racing yacht.

The Resolute, the third candidate, is owned by a syndicate of which Robert W. Emmens is the managing director. The yacht was designed by Nat Herreshoff and built at the Herreshoff yards at Bristol, R. I.

It is unnecessary to state that no ## expense has been spared in building the three yachts. Those who have had experience in the sport estimate that the total expense of defending the famous trophy against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, will come close to half a million dollars.

Great Interest. The defense of the cup is a national affair and is regarded by yachtsmen as of such importance that the best design, the best material and the best workmanship must be had at any cost. The work of designing a cup defender entails many times as much labor as is employed in designing an ordinary craft of the same size. Every detail is calculated to the greatest nicety. The size of every part is proportioned to its work and the strength of every bit of material that goes into the boat is closely calculated.

In addition to the large initial expense incurred in the designing and the building of the racing yachts, there is the expense of the crew, and charges for towing, repairs and numerous other things that would never occur to the lay mind.

An expert skipper and a crew of fifty or more men are engaged and under pay weeks before the yacht is launched. The members of the crew are paid their salaries and provided with food and clothing for a period of seven or eight months and it is customary to charter a special steamer upon which to berth the men during the entire season of racing.

Handsome Nanny. Nanny, the former Boston backstop, is getting into the fray more regularly now that he is with the Yankees. "Nanny" was wear## ing out uniforms polishing the Red Sox bench before he was shipped to New York.

Walter Johnson's remarkable success seems to have infused the whole Johnson clan with the idea that they are there with the ball and bat. North Dakota is the latest to come through with an entire Johnson outfit, nine Johnsons on one team.

In winning fourteen of the first fifteen games played, the Burlington Central association team has produced about the classical performance in minor league society.

The champion Newark team is finding the going pretty tough in the International league. Baltimore, Buffalo, Rochester, Toronto and Providence all look strong enough to scalp the Indians.

The first conflicting date in Brooklyn between the National and Federal leagues will be June 1, when the Boston Braves tackle the Superbas and the Baltimore Terrapins clash with the TinCaps.
